

SNEERS AT SUIT OF A POOR BOY FOR $7,000,000

Alfred Barry Says He Has No Right to Dr. Barry's Estate.

Alfred E. Barry, son of the late Dr. John H. Barry, who left an estate of $7,000,000, declared in an Evening World reporter today that the claim of Robert L. Barry that he is the only legitimate son and heir of the dead physician is preposterous. In discussing the threatened suit of the alleged heir he said that it was a cruel and unjust reflection upon his mother, Mrs. Grace H. Barry, with whom he is living at the Emporio Hotel, 333rd street and Columbus avenue.

"I regard this man as 'crazy,'" said young Barry. "If he had any status which he hasn't why did he sleep on the floor so long? We have heard of all the allegations before."

"Why does he wait so long to bring suit, and when he brings it why does he claim why does he do so in such a cowardly and contemptible manner? If there was any truth in the story of his parentage why did he not make it known during the lifetime of any father? He waits until every person involved in his claim is dead and then comes forward with this specious story."

Will Not Compromise.

"That we would attempt to compromise with him is absurd to even imagine. Of course, we want to be fair, but there's absolutely no truth in the allegations he has made concerning my mother, and we have placed the matter in the hands of our lawyers, who will immediately take a decision."

In the suit Robert L. Barry has brought in the Supreme Court he declares that Grace H. Barry, the widow and heir of Dr. Barry, was the legal wife of the physician, and that, therefore, neither she nor her son has any right to the estate of the physician who makes this strange charge lives in a modest room at No. 49 West Twelfth street. This is his statement of his case:

At the age of sixteen, following the death of his mother, Catherine Moore of Malone, N. Y., he fled to this city. He says he married Miss Jessie Edgerly of Cairo, N. Y. He was then away from home being educated, and his early marriage angered his father.

He did not learn of his father's death in 1906 in the palatial Barry residence, No. 116 West Seventy-third street, until months after the funeral. For two years prior to his father's death young Barry adds, he received financial assistance through a woman who described herself as Grace H. Barry, but whose relationship was never explained. For fourteen months after the death of his father young Barry avers he continued to receive sums of money from "Grace H. Barry." Then she told him to go to work and that was the last he saw of her.

For some months before my father died, Barry adds, I did not see him, and it was during that time that I was forced to make a will in which I was completely ignored.

Father Was Rich.

"My suspicions that my father had been a very wealthy man were aroused through remembering that the woman had once told me that I had a well-to-do uncle, W. C. Barry, by name, and that he lived in Boston. I found out that it was W. C. Barry, of Rochester, instead."

"After that, Henry J. Carrigan was appointed my guardian, and I was under our present attorney. I have for months been working to secure the necessary evidence of my birth and parentage. I have every proof that my father married my mother and that he was not married to any other woman when he died. I have evidence concerning the present Mrs. Barry, his alleged widow, which I will produce at the proper time. They were in reality man and wife, and when both were young they were closely associated. Mrs. Barry was Grace Brooks of Rochester. I have sworn in vain for any other woman to be my mother's wife, although she says that they were man and wife. I am convinced from the proof I have that my father did not marry her. I led a double life, and presently did, but I am sure that I am his only lawful son and heir. I have been offered as high as $10,000 to withdraw my name from this suit, but I have refused. I am determined to fight the matter to the end."

Charges Incompetency.

The complaint in Barry's suit alleges that when Dr. Barry was incompetent to make a last will and testament, that his capacity had been affected by disease and the excessive use of morphine, which had caused attacks. It also alleges that the will was made solely because of the undue influence exerted by Mrs. Barry. The will was by Mrs. Barry's attorney, James M. Barry, and the executor of the estate. It is claimed that Grace H. Barry was the lawful wife of Dr. Barry when he died, and that Alfred E. Barry was born during the lifetime of such marriage.

Attorney Lang said today, in behalf of Mrs. Barry, that she never had her son registered with her will.
